HOLIDAY HAPPENINGS

If you want to get in the holiday spirit, here are four events that will make your spirits soar!

GLOW Nashville, located at First Horizon Park, offers ice skating and tubing, as well as one of the country's tallest Christmas trees. A life-size Santa's workshop will thrill the kids, and there are millions of lights decorating larger-than-life sculptures.

For a cool cultural experience, make your way to the Nashville Zoo for Zoolumination: Chinese Festival of Lights. Said to be the country's largest lantern festival, the event features more than 500 custom-made silk lanterns, including a 200-foot-long dragon. In addition, visitors can enjoy Chinese acrobats and entertainers, Santa's village and holiday-themed scenes throughout the zoo's 60 acres.

Rounding out the holiday experience in Music City are Cheekwood Estate & Gardens Holiday LIGHTS, with over 1 million lights and 500,000 light strings, and Gaylord Opryland® Resort & Convention Center's Country Christmas, with an array of holiday activities and events, more than 3 million lights and fabulous decorations.

STAR-STUDDED SEASON

Events featuring musical icons, sports champions and celebrated artists bring STAR POWER to the second half of 2020.

MUSIC ALL DAY, EVERY DAY

There's never an "off night" in Nashville. Starting with the legendary Grand Ole Opry, which has run nonstop for nearly a century, live music fills the city all day, every day featuring talented musicians at events and venues around town.

The Opry takes place each weekend at the Grand Ole Opry House in the northeast part of the city, but the longest-running radio show also returns to the Ryman Auditorium a few times a year for Opry Country Classics and Opry at the Ryman productions.

The world-famous Bluebird Cafe, Tootsie's Orchid Lounge and some 180 other local venues host talented singers and songwriters every night of the week.

Tap into who's playing where by downloading the free Nashville Live Music Guide App (visitmusiccity.com/nashvillemusicapp).

In addition to clubs and honky tonks, Nashville is home to major concert venues with blockbuster shows throughout the year and numerous music festivals across all genres.

Live on the Green is one of the most popular annual events, featuring a series of free Thursday night concerts in August leading up to a Labor Day weekend musical extravaganza showcasing regional and national rock and indie acts.

For more details, go to visitmusiccity.com.

PUT YOUR GAME FACE ON

Is there anything better than late summer and early fall for a sports fan? Bats are still cracking, pads are popping, cleats are kicking and skates are laced up ready to go.

Home to professional baseball, football, soccer and hockey and host of the record-breaking 2019 NFL Draft, it's no wonder Nashville was named Best Sports City in the country by Street & Smith's Sports Business Journal last year.

The city looks to keep the streak alive as fans flock to First Horizon Park to cheer on the Nashville Sounds, AAA affiliate of the Texas Rangers.

In 2020, Nissan Stadium will play double duty as home field for football and futbol. Coming off a deep run in the playoffs, the Tennessee Titans are in search of a Super Bowl ring, and Nashville SC, which made its Major League

Soccer debut earlier this year at Nissan while the club's own stadium is under construction, looks to finish the season strong.

As Decision Day draws near for MLS teams, the puck drops at Bridgestone Arena to start another hard-hitting NHL hockey season starring perennial playoff favorites the Nashville Predators.

The pros don't have all the fun, though. Collegiate fans take over Nashville at the end of the year for the annual TransPerfect Music City Bowl, pitting an SEC team against a Big Ten opponent.

Looking ahead, Nashville will host the TOYOTA U.S. Figure Skating Championships in January 2022, which is the final qualifying event before nominations to the U.S. Olympic team.

LET FREEDOM SING!

One of the most highly anticipated independence celebrations in the country, Let Freedom Sing! Music City July 4th is Nashville's musical tribute to America. The downtown event includes a Family Fun Zone and live entertainment at various locations downtown.

Recent headliners have included Sheryl Crow, Chris Young, Lady Antebellum and Brett Eldredge.

The evening culminates with one of the nation's largest fireworks displays choreographed to the live music of the GRAMMY®-winning Nashville Symphony. For more info, go to visitmusiccity.com/july4th.

GET YOUR MOTOR RUNNING

Following its debut in 2019, NASCAR Champion's Week makes a triumphant return in early December as top drivers descend on downtown Nashville for autograph sessions, interactive fan activities and the ultimate season-ending celebration at the 2020 NASCAR Awards.

Everyone is revved up for Burnouts on Broadway. The showstopper features the NASCAR Cup Series playoff drivers as they take over Music City's iconic Lower Broad for a fast spin under the neon lights. When the smoke clears, who will be the fan favorite? For details, go to visitmusiccity.com/nascar.

CREATIVE TO THE CORE

The popular First Saturday Art Crawl welcomes guests to downtown galleries for monthly receptions and art openings, and the city's acclaimed professional performing arts companies feature a full slate of stage shows throughout the year.

The fall is a particularly busy season for festivals with cultural and artistic flair. October has so many options it's been dubbed Artober.

The month kicks off with the 42nd Annual Fall Tennessee Craft Fair at Centennial Park featuring handmade artwork, jewelry, textiles and more and continues with celebrations across the city, including Germantown's Oktoberfest, the Southern Festival of Books and special installations at galleries and museums across the city.

Fall is also when cultural celebrations, including events tied to Hispanic Heritage Month and the Celebrate Nashville Cultural Festival, honor the community's cultural diversity through dance, art, music and food.

TASTE OF THE TOWN

The culinary arts are yet another way the city showcases creativity. Increasingly known as a foodie destination, Nashville hosts a number of events celebrating great taste.

A few late summer and fall food events include the Music City Hot Chicken Festival, l'Été du Vin, Wine on the River, Nashville Whiskey Festival, Music City Bacon & Barrel Festival, Nashville Brew Festival and Taste Nashville.

AND THE WINNER IS...

In November, the 54th Annual CMA Awards will broadcast live on ABC from Nashville's Bridgestone Arena. Although voting for the award-winners is reserved for members of the Country Music Association, a limited number of tickets are on sale to the public for the star-studded evening of chart-topping country performances and genre-crossing collaborations.

Can't get a ticket? There's still plenty of fun to be had on Country's Biggest Night as fans line up to catch sight of the stars on the red carpet and enjoy watch parties around town. Go to visitmusiccity.com/cmaawards.

IT'S A FESTIVAL FRENZY!

The fall calendar is full of fun events you won't want to miss!

Early August is for fashionistas when the city hosts Nashville Fashion Week. The annual celebration features local, regional and national designers. Events include promotions and partnerships with retailers and educational workshops.

Music is in the air at the annual Bonnaroo Music & Arts Festival, held this year at the end of September. More than 150 acts from all genres perform on 10 stages at the outdoor event, which brings some 80,000 people to enjoy tunes on the old McAllister Farm outside Manchester.

The Tin Pan South Songwriters Festival in October is a five-day event that brings hundreds of songwriters to Music City who share the stories behind their hits. More than 100 shows at 10 different venues will keep you humming all night long.

Finally, 2020 is the 100th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, giving women the right to vote. A variety of music, art and educational events are scheduled throughout the city.

For more details, go to visitmusiccity.com/events and visitmusiccity.com/19thamendment.

RING IN THE NEW YEAR IN MUSIC CITY

More than 200,000 come together at downtown's Bicentennial Capitol Mall State Park for the Jack Daniel's® Music City Midnight: New Year's Eve in Nashville.

The free, televised event is a great way to cap off 2020 with hours of live music, fireworks and the countdown to the giant Music Note Drop®.

Last year's diverse lineup included Keith Urban, Jason Isbell, Stevie Nicks, The Struts and Ashley McBryde. Come join the party and see who'll be rocking out to ring in 2021. Find out more at visitmusiccity.com/newyeareve.

New to NASHVILLE

If it's been a few months – or even a few weeks – since you last visited Nashville, you might be surprised by all that's new to see and do.

PHOTOS CLOCKWISE: JEFF ADKINS / JACI; NATHAN LAMBRECHT / JACI (LAST TWO)

Music City simply can't sit still. Downtown is exploding with new hotels and museums, while once-sleepy neighborhoods now boast trendy restaurants and fun things to do. Even the airport is getting in on the action, rolling out major upgrades that will please any traveler. Nashville is never lacking for exciting reasons to visit – here are the latest and greatest.

HOTELS ARE HOT!

Nashville's skyline has been shapeshifting in recent years, largely due to the nonstop construction of high-rise lodging.

Nearly 20 hotels are slated to open in 2020, offering visitors more than 3,500 new rooms – compared to just under 2,000 in 2019.

Among the most highly anticipated debuts are downtown's 25-story Grand Hyatt, part of the Nashville Yards development; SoBro's The Joseph, with its easy access to both downtown and East Nashville; a rooftop pool-outfitted Hampton Inn & Suites in the burgeoning Capitol View neighborhood; and The Gulch's W Hotel, which will feature an outpost of the local coffee shop Barista Parlor.

Other recent newcomers worth a stay include: Music Row's swanky Virgin Hotel and Midtown's Graduate Hotel – whose Cross-Eyed Critters Watering Hole is a karaoke joint with its own animatronic backup band.

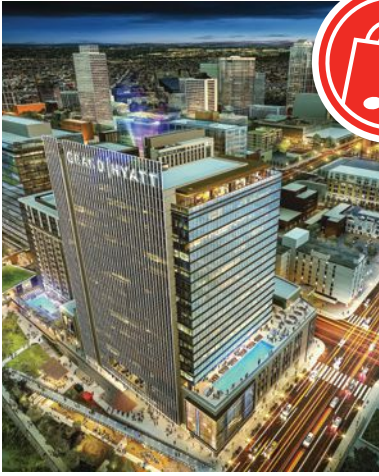

FOOD FRENZY

No matter your mood, budget or palate, you won't leave Nashville hungry. And while the city still offers plenty of hot chicken and meat-and-threes, the diversity of its cuisines is ever-expanding.

Both the 12 South neighborhood and acclaimed chef Trevor Moran have another hit on their hands with Locust, which unites dumplings and Japanese-style shaved ice. (Even Vogue has sung the restaurant's praises.)

Asian street fare – think beef bulgogi skewers and steamed baos – is available at Hawkers in East Nashville. Hillsboro Village's three-story E3 Chophouse is a ranch-to-restaurant known for its hand-cut, made-to-order steaks. And the upcoming PABU, inside the JW Marriott downtown, is part sushi bar, part high-end izakaya with fish flown in from Japan.

ONE-STOP SHOPS

Now trending in the heart of Music City: mixed-use developments.

Fifth + Broadway replaces the former convention center site with the National Museum of African American Music, office and residential buildings, shops, a music venue and a food hall with everything from ice cream and barbecue to sushi.

Just blocks away, the 17-acre Nashville Yards will bring the Grand Hyatt hotel, its own entertainment district and a public park, plus office space (including an Amazon campus) and residential units.

Finally, Bob Dylan is setting up his Heaven's Door Distillery and Center for the Arts in a former church just south of Broadway; the project will offer guided tours of the whiskey distillery, a restaurant, the obligatory music venue and displays of the legendary singer-songwriter's paintings and metal sculptures.

MUSIC, MLS AND MORE

Like Johnny Cash and George Jones, the late Glen Campbell has been honored with his own permanent downtown tribute: The Glen Campbell Museum & Rhinestone Stage. (Expect lots of Ovation guitars, iconic suits and golf paraphernalia.)

One of the state's newest Tennessee Music Pathways was inspired by the 2019 PBS "Country Music" documentary and includes a dozen stops in the Nashville area (and beyond), from the Grand Ole Opry to Third Man Records.

If you're more of a night owl, Brooklyn Bowl recently brought a sizable music venue and state-of-the-art bowling to Germantown.

Outside of music, Nashville SC's inaugural Major League Soccer season includes home games at Nissan Stadium against Real Salt Lake and the LA Galaxy, and Belmont University will host the final presidential debate on Oct. 22 – just 12 days before the election.

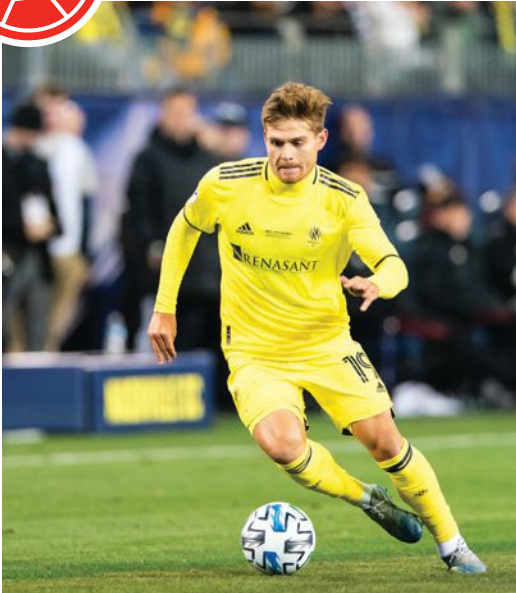

THIS AIRPORT IS SOARING

Nashville International Airport's ongoing renovation project is bringing massive, much-needed additions – like an on-site hotel, three terminal garages, an expanded main lobby and a state-of-the-art International Arrivals Facility – while maintaining its Southern charm.

When Concourse D opens in July 2020, it will feature six domestic aircraft gates, public art installations and new restaurants and shops; expansions to the north and south terminal wings will add 200,000 square feet of space for travelers.

By the end of the year, BNA expects to offer more than 50 new food and retail options (plus its freshly renovated Tootsies spinoff). And when fully completed in 2023, the airport's concessions program will occupy 133,000 square feet, with significant participation by local restaurateurs and retailers, including small, minority-owned and woman-owned businesses.

A NEW ERA OF MUSIC

National Museum of African American Music is a ONE-OF-A-KIND experience

Nashville's musical legacy soars to new heights as the National Museum of African American Music makes its highly anticipated debut at Fifth + Broadway this fall.

Celebrating the foundational influences of black artists on the American soundtrack, the new museum takes its rightful place among the country's other iconic cultural collections that tell the unique story of the American experience.

THE PAST TO THE PRESENT

From concept to completion, NMAAM has been over two decades in the making. It was critically important to the visionaries behind the project that the interactive displays not only set the scene historically but also make active connections with current influences across all genres and to do so in a highly engaging manner. The result is a one-of-a-kind experience that explores music on a much deeper level.

From the beginning, Music City was a natural choice for such a museum with its deep connection to the makers who create and produce music. But Nashville's specific ties to African American artists go back more than two centuries.

Music born from early slave spirituals would be introduced to wider audiences across the United States and Europe with the international rise of the Fisk Jubilee Singers in the late 19th century. The rich a cappella tones of the Fairfield Four originated in Nashville, and early country music star and bluesman DeFord Bailey would debut on the national broadcast of the Grand Ole Opry.

With its clear channel reach to half the nation, Nashville's WLAC introduced much of the country to jazz and R&B in the mid-20th century, and the city's prolific nightclub scene nurtured local artists and attracted those from larger urban areas. Soon black artists began recording in Nashville, drawing upon the city's rich pool of musicians, songwriters, singers and producers.

Against this backdrop, NMAAM paints the picture of African American music emanating from across the nation with galleries devoted to specific genres, as well as rotating special exhibits.

TAKE A TRIP THROUGH TIME

Visitors begin their journey with an immersive film experience in the Roots Theater to help set the stage. Flowing through the entire museum, the Rivers of Rhythm Pathways showcase the evolution of musical styles through interactive touch panels and an animated timeline to link different genres with American history.

From Wade in the Water to One Nation Under A Groove, the different galleries focus on spirituals, gospel, blues, jazz, R&B, soul, rock, techno and other evolving sounds. The final gallery, The Message, takes a deep dive into the origins of hip-hop and rap, and showcases how the urban decay and renewal in New York City gave rise to what is now America's most popular form of music.

“NMAAM paints the picture of African American music emanating from across the nation with galleries devoted to specific genres, as well as rotating special exhibits.”

FIVE CENTURIES OF MUSIC COME TO LIFE

To tell these stories, NMAAM has collected more than 1,500 artifacts and developed 25 interactive touchpoints spanning five centuries from the 1600s to present day.

Whether it's Kirk Whalum's saxophone or Keb' Mo's guitar, handwritten lyrics from Babyface or Rihanna's costume from a world tour, each piece sheds light on the musical journey. NMAAM also has created immersive augmented reality experiences in each gallery to bring the music to life. Don't just learn about the gospel influences of Dr. Bobby Jones, join the choir. Fascinated by the lyrical quality of the blues? Lay down your own track.

Music fans from around the world have eagerly counted down to the grand opening of the National Museum of African American Music. The wait is over, let the experience begin.

Instagrammable
SPOTS AROUND
NASHVILLE

Social media drives many travelers' experiences in 2020, and a destination like Nashville is a blank canvas for the budding iPhoneographer. Looking to make a splash on your social media profile when you come to Music City? Here are some of the most iconic, Instagrammable spots around Nashville that your friends won't even need a caption to decipher.

① JOHN SEIGENTHALER PEDESTRIAN BRIDGE

On the National Register of Historic Places, the John Seigenthaler Pedestrian Bridge stretches across the Cumberland River, linking downtown with East Nashville and Nissan Stadium, home to NFL team the Tennessee Titans. It's also one of the best vantage points for a skyline shot of Music City at dusk in all her golden-hour glory.

② 12 SOUTH MURALS

One of the Nashville's most popular places to strike a pose is located in the hip and happening 12 South neighborhood. Artist Adrien Saporiti's popular "I Believe in Nashville" murals and several of his other colorful paintings can be found in various hot spots around the city.

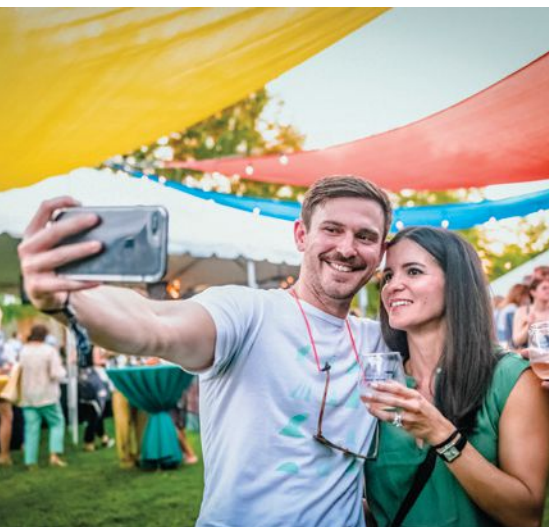

③ NASHVILLE FARMERS' MARKET

Head over to the Nashville Farmers' Market, a bustling cornucopia of deliciousness and a great place to snap some social-media-worthy images. The year-round market is the perfect place for fresh produce, artisanal food, tasty meals, shopping, crafts, classes and fun chef demos. A monthly Night Market features live music and an opportunity to support local farmers and community organizations.

④ THE PARTHENON

This towering architectural marvel near Vanderbilt University is the centerpiece of Centennial Park and a full-scale replica of the original structure in Athens. Step inside to take a photo of the 42-foot Athena statue and marvel at the collection of 63 paintings by 19th and 20th century American artists.

⑤ BICENTENNIAL CAPITOL MALL STATE PARK

For a bit of history, nature and an nod to Tennessee's 1996 Bicentennial Celebration, explore Bicentennial Capitol Mall State Park, located smack dab in the heart of the city. You'll find a 200-foot granite map of the state, a World War II Memorial, a 95-bell carillon and the Rivers of Tennessee Fountains. The park also hosts some fun festivals, including Jack Daniel's Music City Midnight®: New Year's Eve in Nashville. Find the perfect spot and get your camera ready!

⑥ THE GULCH MURALS

Become a "living work of art" if only for a few minutes when you stand in front of the "What Lifts You" mural in The Gulch. Kelsey Montague's popular wings artwork draws visitors from around the globe who line up to stand before the intricately designed wings. For even more colorful imagery, take a stroll around the neighborhood. You'll find plenty of fun places to eat, drink, stay and shop, too.

⑦ MUSIC CITY WALK OF FAME

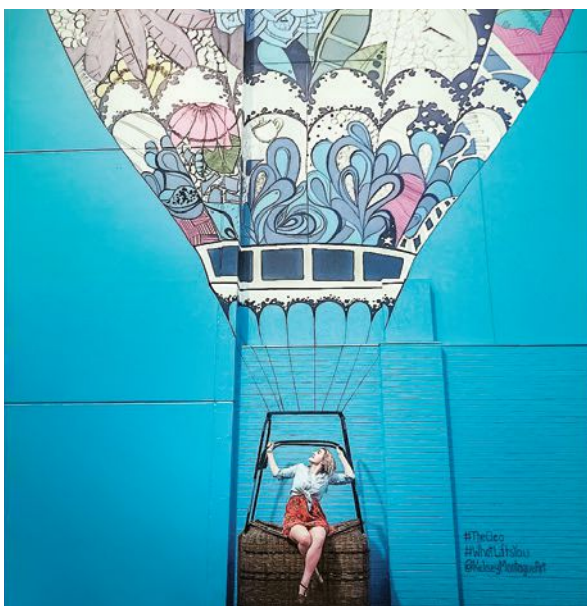

The Music City Walk of Fame is one of downtown Nashville's landmarks. The stars that line the walkway span genres and generations, and honor those that create, record, perform and present music to and for the world. Find your favorite stars, take pictures and plan to attend one of the annual induction ceremonies, which are free and open to the public. The Walk of Fame is located on Demonbreun Street, between Fourth and Fifth Avenues South.

⑧ EAST NASHVILLE MURALS

East Nashville is undeniably the hub of some of the city's best murals and, accordingly, photo ops. Drive down Main Street – where you'll see a couple of colorful leopards done by Eastside Murals – through Five Points and along Gallatin Road where myriad large-scale installations live, such as Chris Zidek's geometric octopus snaking its way up a retail space that's directly in front of the hot-air balloon Kelsey Montague painted several stories high on the side of The Cleo apartment complex.

Nashville's famous murals are hot spots for photos. Check them out at visitmusiccity.com/murals.

Culinary CRAVINGS

Award-Winning Chef MANEET CHAUHAN'S
TAKE On Nashville as a Dining Destination

"The fact that Nashville is not only on a national but on an international scene in terms of culinary, gives me goosebumps. It's because of the caliber of food chefs are turning out here."

— Maneet Chauhan

Raised with a passion for the fragrant, flavorful food that is a hallmark of her native India, chef Maneet Chauhan couldn't have imagined where her career would take her when she boarded her first flight to the United States to attend the Culinary Institute of America in New York.

It's a pretty safe bet, however, she didn't dream that leap of faith would land her in Nashville. Yet Music City's creative spirit turned out to be the perfect fit for her and Vivek Deora, her husband and business partner, to put down roots and grow a culinary empire.

Her innovative melding of flavors, accompanied by her warm personality, quickly made her a fan favorite with four popular restaurants (Chauhan Ale & Masala House, Chaatable, Mockingbird and Tansuo) and two area breweries (Mantra Artisan Ales and Steel Barrel) that craft unique ales to complement food offerings.

The award-winning chef, cookbook author and judge on the Food Network's popular "Chopped" series recently sat down to discuss Nashville's emergence as a top dining destination.

When you were looking at places to open a new restaurant, why Nashville?

To be honest, when we first got the phone call about opening a restaurant in Nashville, we thought – what?! But we did our due diligence and came down. It was pretty much love at first landing. It was the soul of the city that really spoke to us – not only the people but the opportunity the city offered. We knew we'd be creating a niche for Nashville. ▶

Nashville is a music city because of the audience. Similarly, it's become a foodie city because of the audience who appreciate, support and encourage sophisticated food choices. It's very exciting we are at that point.

What made you decide to call Nashville home?

We opened Chauhan Ale & Masala House Nov. 18, 2014 and moved right after that. I don't know that I could remember the exact dates my other restaurants opened, but I won't forget that one. My son decided to come two months early on the opening night of the restaurant. My husband jokes I gave birth to "twins" that day. If our son worked so hard to be a Nashvillian, who were we to argue? We've been living here happily ever since. From the minute we moved here, I never felt like I wasn't part of this community.

Your restaurants are a must for locals and visitors alike, but what else do you suggest for those who want to get the flavor of Nashville in a few short days?

I think definitely hot chicken. That is a food group in itself, and it's just perfection. Try a meat-and-three – not only is it the food, it's the sense of community. To me, I'm obsessed with the biscuits at The Loveless Cafe. Then there's Margot Café & Bar and Henrietta Red and how amazing is it that a city like Nashville has a place like The Catbird Seat?

What makes the food scene so special?

Southern hospitality is so deeply engrained in everyone. That camaraderie, that culinary fraternity that is in Nashville is so strong. Everybody is honoring local ingredients while putting their own flair, which is usually global, to their food. The fact that Nashville is not only on a national but on an international scene in terms of culinary, gives me goosebumps. It's because of the caliber of food chefs are turning out here.

Your favorite things to do in the city?

Nashville has so much to see and do! I love the zoo. We have two young kids, and we just did Zoolumination. It's spectacular! I love Cheekwood Estate & Gardens. I love The Parthenon. When we have friends visit, it's one of the first things we do. And the honky tonks – they're so fun. They're a must-stop because you get such incredible live music.

CONNECTING TO THE MUSIC

A free Nashville Live Music Guide App, available for all mobile devices, locates live music venues throughout the city and tells you who's on stage. Users can search by area of town or venue name, and a handy map function will show your location and the live music venue options nearby. No app? No problem. Look for the series of guitar pick sidewalk signs that indicate where great live music can be found. For more information, go to visitmusiccity.com/nashvillemusicapp.

Willie Nelson

PHOTO: LEONARD KAMSLER, FROM THE LEONARD KAMSLER COLLECTION AT THE COUNTRY MUSIC HALL OF FAME AND MUSEUM

He slicked his hair and donned turtlenecks and ties, but Willie Nelson never quite squared with the style and sound of 1960s Nashville. “There were good moments, but it was an uphill battle,” he wrote in It’s a Long Story: My Life . . . “For that I don’t blame Nashville. I blame my own peculiar nature.” Nelson had written hit songs for Patsy Cline, Faron Young, and other country stalwarts, but his own jazz-inflected vocals made for a tough Music City fit.

In 1970, Nelson’s home north of Nashville burned. In 1971, he packed up and returned to his native Texas, settling in Austin, and falling into a burgeoning scene of hippies and country fans, gathering in the same rooms, smiling at the same things.

The Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum’s major exhibition, Outlaws & Armadillos: Country’s Roaring ’70s, celebrates a period of musical evolution, and revolution, in country music. Explore more of the story at the Museum through February 14, 2021.

LODGING

Nashville was named a Top Travel Destination for 2020 by Condé Nast Traveler on the TODAY Show (January 2020)

This is not a waterpark.

THIS IS A REFRESHING TWIST ON FAMILY TIME.

Chill vibe or thrill ride, riding the wave or floating along a lazy river, SoundWaves fuses music and water to create an exclusive experience with something for the entire family. This is America's first upscale indoor/outdoor resort water attraction. This is fantastic.

THE JOSEPH

NASHVILLE AT ITS MOST REFINED

The Joseph, a Luxury Collection Hotel, Nashville brings the full story of Nashville to life with cultural and artistic diversity, meaningful experiences and Southern heart. Our deep, local roots and worldly relevance welcome the discerning traveler with impeccably designed spaces, authentic comfort, and warm sophistication that delights and surprises while remaining decidedly Tennessean. From the arrival in the porte-cochère, and cocktails crafted at the 21st-floor bar, to the view of the skyline from the fitness center, and the select fine artwork on display throughout the hotel every detail is carefully orchestrated to convey a city of compelling beauty, intriguing complexity, and substantive moments. Located in SoBro, moments from the Schermerhorn Symphony Center, Bridgestone Arena and legendary Broadway, The Joseph is somewhere to fall more deeply in love with life.

DESIGNING THE NEW: CHARLES RENNIE MACKINTOSH AND THE GLASGOW STYLE This exhibition showcases Charles Rennie Mackintosh (1868–1928) – the greatest exponent of the Glasgow Style – as an architect, designer and artist, and contextualizes his production within a larger circle of designers and craftspeople in the major Scottish city. Mackintosh worked most closely with his wife, Margaret Macdonald; Margaret's sister, Frances Macdonald; and Frances' husband, James Herbert McNair. They met as students at the progressive Glasgow School of Art in 1892 and together were known as The Four. Combining influences from the Arts and Crafts Movement, Celtic Revival, and Japonism,

Glasgow artists created their own modern design aesthetic synonymous with sleek lines and emphatic geometries expressed in a wide range of materials. Frist Center for the Visual Arts. 615-244-3340 fristartmuseum.org

BETHANY COLLINS: EVENSONG

Chicago-based artist Bethany Collins explores the historic intersection of language and racism in her multimedia practice. She often manipulates and reprints existing written documents – such as the leading daily newspaper in Birmingham, Ala., during the 1960s or the US Department of Justice's report on the Ferguson, Mo., police department – to critique the accuracy and completeness of official records. A new artist book will feature 100 versions of "The Star-Spangled Banner," most in support of a particular political or social cause. The multiple reinterpretations of this patriotic song – originally written in 1814 by Francis Scott Key and the national anthem since 1931 – will offer opportunities for reflection on what it means to be an American, a particularly resonant topic during a presidential election year. Frist Art Museum. 615-244-3340 fristartmuseum.org

OCTOBER 23–JANUARY 17

LILIANA PORTER: MAN WITH AXE AND OTHER STORIES

Argentina-born artist Liliana Porter's provocative arrangements of objects and toys tell stories that are at once psychologically charged and slyly humorous. The centerpiece of the exhibition, "Man with Axe," features a tiny plastic figure of an axe-wielding man, who appears to have demolished an array of items, from dollhouse furniture to large vases, clocks and even a full-sized piano. This trail of destruction signals both the entropic effects of time and the collapse of historical progress that can be caused by a single agent of chaos. In "Man with Axe," Porter asks big questions: Who are we? What do we do? What's it about? Frist Art Museum. 615-244-3340 fristartmuseum.org
